In addition to signs, the CNC router is also used to create precision parts and for other applications such as stencils, flexible gaskets, plastic machining, plastic control tags, and switch boards.

Using specialized software, our designers are able to output digital vector files that provide the router with instructions for bit revolution rate as well as cut speed and depth. These files are archived once the job is complete so that items can be reproduced at a later date.

Work Designs maintains a selection of specialized bits for use with different materials and for achieving a variety of results. This allows the router to make accurate cuts into a variety of substances.

Clarity and consistency are the keys to successful communication.

With multiple in-house graphic designers, we can help you to achieve the perfect look for your logo, products, or brand. Work Designs employs a highly skilled art department that operates the latest industry-standard software. Our graphic designers often work closely with our clients to create custom, professional designs. They carry decades of experience in producing top quality prints, and can offer suggestions as to how to achieve the best possible results on your printed items.

Graphic design isn't just about making pretty prints though. Our designers also understand the importance of function and practicality in design as well as the need for clear and concise messaging. They know that art must be communicative as well as visually appealing if it is to have a positive impact on the viewer. In addition to traditional print media, our graphic artists can work with you to design logos and establish branding. They can also help to generate advertisements for magazines, newspapers, social media websites, and other forms of online marketing.

UNIFORM PROGRAMS

In addition to promoting your brand, uniforms are an effective and time-tested way to communicate your company's professionalism and trustworthiness. Uniforms help members of a group to see that they are part of a larger collective and to act accordingly. But they also communicate to members outside of that group: A strong uniform program conveys a sense of unity and stability to your customers. It helps them to feel safe and secure in the knowledge that they are being cared for by a team of qualified professionals. That's why a good uniform program is so important. It is a reflection of the quality of your services and your products.

Your employees carry your company name with them everywhere they go. We want them to look their best!

We want your workers to look their best, so that your company looks its best! To that end, Work Designs offer a variety of uniform options and services. Like our other services, our uniforms are delivered with the quality and attention to detail that you have come to expect from Work Designs.

ONLINE STORES

Work Designs offers customized online stores that make ordering easy for individual employees or members of your organization. You can select a preferred payment method, such as user points or credit card purchases. Store product availability is specific to your company, school, or organization and can also be tailored to user groups within your organization. For example, you can decide whether certain items are available only to managers or office workers or if they can be purchased by any user. Users can select from product options such as color, size, and imprint or logo preference. All stores include product images and descriptions, along with your company logo. Products can be browsed by category or through our product search feature

How can a company store help my business?

Brand Consistency. Online Stores help to ensure the integrity of your brand by giving you the chance to select and approve all items that your logo goes on well before they are ordered. When all of your branded items—from business cards to uniforms—are handled through a single online store, there is no more guess work or hunting for files. Work Designs already knows your company's expectations and ordering an item only takes a few mouse clicks. If additional oversight is needed, an order approval process can also be implemented through your online store, giving management the power to quickly and easily review orders before they are placed.

Time & Cost Savings. Having an online store means fewer emails and phone calls for you and your employees when it comes to ordering company items. Personalized information, such as name embroidery or business card information, can be entered while shopping. The ordering process is streamlined, and fewer forwarded emails mean less confusion and less chance for error.

Since items are selected, designed, and pre-approved for ordering, it means less time spent reviewing proofs and revision emails on each and every item your company orders. It also means that the power to order items can be spread out to more employees, at your discretion, without having to worry about branding inconsistencies or a loss in quality. All of this, as well as the potential to save by combining shipping and purchasing in bulk, can translate to significant savings for your company.

By setting up an approval process or a points program, you can also control costs by monitoring and controlling spending. At your request, we can also run reports to give you an idea of how much has been spent on your store in a given time period, what items have been ordered, point balances, and more.

Morale & Employee Retention. Incentives Programs are a great way to boost morale and encourage employees to meet company goals, such as safety or performance based goals. Incentives Programs have also been shown to increase company loyalty as well as boost productivity.

With more and more companies offering regular incentives programs, this also means that an incentives-based company store can make your company much more appealing to new talent, in turn making your company more competitive.

It is also important to note that studies suggest employees are more responsive to incentives programs when they have a voice in the rewards or when the rewards are designed with them in mind. An online store is an excellent way of giving your employees a choice in their incentive rewards and your Work Designs representative will be happy to work with you to find items that excite your employees.
